

GRADUATION RATES

UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS

The four-year undergraduate graduation rate is 65.7% for elementary education majors. This is based on the percentage of elementary education teacher candidates who graduated within four years in elementary education that entered in the fall 2015 in the same major. Students who changed from elementary education to another major are excluded from the graduation rate, even if they graduated in another education major within four years.

The five-year undergraduate graduation rate is 74.5% for elementary education majors. It is calculated the same as the four-year rate above. These calculations are based on the IPEDS Graduation Rates', which is an institutional data collection and not a program specific measure.

GRADUATE STUDENTS

The 2018-2019 cohort graduation rate of master level elementary education majors is 80%. These are students who first entered in the summer of 2018 in the elementary education major and graduated within the cohort timeframe of 16 months.
